COUNTY ROAD PROGRAM STARTED MONDAY

JUDGE ARTHUR H. ROTHE

County Judge Arthur H. Rothe, who campaigned zealously for the good-road program for Medina County, had the pleasure Monday morning, April 8th, at 7:30 a. m. of pulling the lever to release the first load of gravel basing on a county road under the $800,000 bond issue road project. The contractor, the McKenzie Construction Company, of San Antonio, started the construction on the Hondo-Tarpley Road, beginning at the concrete dip a few blocks north of the courthouse. The work on this initial project will extend up the Hondo Valley to the Medina-Bandera County line and also to the Britsch-Decker crossing on the Hondo Creek.

MAN PERISHES IN TRAILER FIRE

Adam J. See, 48, who had been making his home in Hondo for the past several years, perished in a fire which destroyed his trailer home west of the Richter Hotel about 3:15 a. m.
Sunday morning, April 7th. Origin of the destructive and tragic conflagration is unknown. An inquest was held by Justice of the Peace L. F.
Rothe immediately after the flames were extinguished by the Hondo Volunteer Fire Dept. According to his findings, the position of the victim's body near the door of the trailer indicated that he had tried to escape but was probably suffocated by the smoke and was dead before the flames reached him. His body was taken to Hogger Funeral Home and Sunday afternoon was sent to Houston where his mother and other members of the family reside. Mr. See had been employed at Hondo Army Air Field at one time and at the time of his tragic death was working at the carpenter's trade in Hondo.

VOICE OF THE CHAMBER

Work for Hondo!
The "three little words" listed above imply a challenge to all of us. We are all interested in the development of Hondo so it behooves us to accept the challenge. It is only by working together for the common good of Hondo, that any progress can be made.
It is only by joint and cooperative action that the objective of a "better Hondo" can be attained.

We are interested in such things that work in the common interest of our citizenry. We are interested in the development of any industry or business which will provide work for our people and from which business already established will derive benefits.
We are interested in recreational facilities for our people—for young and old alike. We are interested in the improvement of such facilities that are conducive to good health. We are interested in the spiritual side of our people, because this adds to the happiness of our folks.

An ambitious program—or should we say an ambitious interest in our people. Well, yes, but it can be done by accepting the challenge—Work for Hondo.

Retailers Demonstrate How OPA Causes "Camouflaged Inflation"

On the basis that unrealistic OPA policies are raising the cost of living in the United States, the National Retail Dry Goods Association displayed before members of Congress in Washington examples of what it calls "camouflaged inflation."
The National Retail Dry Goods
Association does not seek the immediate end of government price control but it asks that Congress amend the Price Control Act so as to increase the production of good quality, low priced consumer goods.
As Benjamin H. Namm, president of the Association said:
"Production can stop inflation if we can only stop OPA from stopping production."
Officials of the Association described "camouflaged inflation" as "holding the line" against rises in the prices of reputable goods while granting higher ceiling prices to inferior merchandise.
The exhibit depicted this discrepancy with the comparison of the women's slips shown above and more than 100 other items received from member stores.
Among these others were a pair of men's white woven broadcloth shorts with an elastic waistband on which was placed an OPA price of $10.50 a dozen. The manufacturer has discontinued production. Beside them were pink shorts of lesser quality bearing an OPA price of $13.50 a dozen.
Also shown were two electric heaters, one of first rate quality made by a prominent manufacturer and priced by the OPA at $8.59 retail while a decidedly poorer model next to it from another maker bore an OPA price of $15.67 retail. The other exhibits were similarly striking.

HEALTH NOTES

If you have not been vaccinated against typhoid fever within the last two or three years, Dr. Geo.
W. Cox, State Health Officer advises you to go to your doctor or to the nearest health officer and have him give you the three "shots" that will protect you against the disease.

"The three shots that will protect against typhoid are given at intervals of one week apart," Dr. Cox stated. "As it takes some time for the protective treatment to be established in your system, it is not wise to delay in having it done.
My advice is, have it done now so that immunization may be complete before summer arrives and vacation trips are taken."

This advice was addressed particularly to Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and other youngsters who are looking forward to spring and summer hikes and trips. It is, however, meant also for others,
young or old, whose business or pleasure during the summer will take them to places where there may be doubt as to the purity or safety of water supply, or as to the care with which food is handled.

The old adage that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is particularly applicable to this disease, which is so dangerous and debilitating when it does occur,
and which can be prevented so easily through immunization.

MAKE HONDO BEAUTIFUL

Major Frank Sheffield, Commanding officer of Hondo Army Air Field, announced that due to fire hazards, all shrubbery located around the buildings at the Field must be removed.

The shrubbery will be offered to the people of Hondo at no expense other than that of removing it from the Field and filling the hole from which it was removed.

First priority will go to the City of Hondo, its public buildings, schools, churches, and other organizations;
then, to the public at large.

You may make application for shrubbery by contacting the Chamber of Commerce. All applications are subject to approval by the Commanding Officer, whose primary desire in giving the shrubbery to the people of Hondo is to see Hondo made a pretty town. No shrubbery may be sold, and one person will receive only so much as he can show use for.

Now is your chance! This shrubbery must be removed at once!

B&PW CLUB TO MEET

The monthly meeting of the Hondo
Business and Professional Women's Club will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday April 16, in the Community Center.
Plans for the benefit game party on April 30th will be completed and other business matters transacted.
Hostesses for the social hour will be
Mrs. Erna Martin and Mrs. Christine Mayberry. All members are requested to be present.

LAY YOUR COURSE, AMERICA!

Like spring thunderheads the evidence towers blackly, formidably, over the country, plainly spelling out a fact that can no longer be ignored: inflation cannot be controlled by decree. The issue of whether to sacrifice a continually larger measure of representative government in the hope of putting the lid on inflation, is rapidly becoming academic. We have both inflation and dangerously autocratic government. The only real question is how to get rid of the frustrated decree system before it becomes a "way of life."

Total war brought about unavoidable public debt increase. This debt is beginning to bear down upon the home front in rising prices and depreciating money with all of the accompanying evils. The people should begin to think clearly on these problems—their freedom hangs in the balance. As disillusionment spreads, they will have a tendency to look for somebody to blame. The danger is that they will blame our form of government itself, a short step from blaming government, to changing government, and if we change our government in this country it can be changed in but one direction—away from "by the people and for the people." Unless the American people think clearly during this critical period, they may let inflation sow seeds of bitterness that will sweep away the great American experiment in human freedom which has given this nation so rich a life for over a century and a half.

We should realize now as never before that America had a war to win. Wars are won by "blood and treasure." We gave our blood and now are giving our treasure—it is being exacted from us through inflation. Inasmuch as modern wars are total wars, the material price may prove to be high. And yet we have no reason to kick, much less expect our government to float the nation painlessly over the abyss. In the day ahead we must weigh our values carefully. We must draw a mental line. On one side we must put our money, our material possessions—on the other we must put the things of the spirit, our form of government, the sanctity of the individual, principles for which this country stands, and for which human beings have struggled through the centuries to attain. This spirit—

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

State Department Blueprints
International Atom Control;
House Probes Spy Intrigue

Released by Western Newspaper Union.
(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Pictured (from bottom to top) during tense UNO talk on Iran are Andrei Gromyko, representing the Soviet; Sir Alexander Cadogan of Britain, and Edward Stettinius and James Byrnes of the U. S.

WORLD RELATIONS:
Atom—Russ

Even as the United Nations Organization's security council strove to compose differences with Russia over the Iranian question, the U. S. state department issued a special report calling for the creation of an international agency to control all phases of atomic energy and avert atomic rivalry among the major powers.

Written by a distinguished board of scientists and technicians the report recommended the establishment of an atomic development authority that would own and lease property and conduct mining, manufacturing, research, licensing, inspection or other operations. While the authority would possess absolute control over the production of atomic weapons, it would permit utilization of atomic energy in such civilian fields as medicine, biology, chemistry and physics.

The U. S.'s secret processes in development of atomic energy would be gradually unfolded to the United Nations authority as plans progressed for its development. Release of preliminary information necessary to discussion of setting up the agency would be followed by revelation of industrial know-how in manufacture and finally the method of constructing the A-bomb.

In releasing the report, Secretary of State Byrnes pointed out that the recommendations did not constitute official U. S. policy but could be considered as a basis for discussion of the creation of an international atomic authority.

Meanwhile, the security council worked on means to adjust the difficult situation posed by Russia's walkout in protest over UNO's consideration of Iran's complaint against the Soviets for failure to withdraw Red troops from the country. While Russia's withdrawal from the deliberations jolted UNO, the Soviets were quick to explain that their action did not mean they were withdrawing from the United Nations, but rather objecting to security council procedure.

SPY INTRIGUE:
House Acts

Hard upon the arrest of a 29-year-old Russian naval officer for espionage by the FBI in Portland, Ore., the house committee on un-American activities, headed by Representative Wood (Dem., Ga.) voted to send investigators up to Canada to probe possible connections between the Soviet spy ring uncovered in the dominion and agents in this country.

Revealing that the committee had been aware of the FBI's investigation of the Soviet naval officer, Lt. Nicolai Redin, the committee counsel said that the group soon would hold hearings on subversive activities and call on a number of witnesses, including atomic scientists and government employees.

Meanwhile, Redin, nabbed for obtaining information about the destroyer tender USS Yellowstone, charged "the whole thing is a build-up for political purposes." A member of the Soviet lend-lease purchasing staff in the U. S., Redin enjoys no diplomatic immunity and was held on $25,000 bond.

SCIENCE:

Use Germans

Some 160 German scientists are now in the United States working on military projects involving captured German equipment including rockets, buzz bombs, jet-propelled planes and aerodynamic research instruments, Secretary of War Patterson announced.

The original plan called for large scale utilization of German experts but was cut back radically following the Japanese surrender.

LABOR FRONT:
Farm Machinery Tie-Up

Government seizure of strike-bound farm machinery plants appeared as the remaining alternative as negotiations between companies and union bogged down and equipment was badly needed for the maintenance of high crop production to meet domestic and foreign demands.

As the government pondered taking over the plants, the International Harvester company continued to resist the CIO-Farm Equipment Workers' demands for union security, maintenance of membership, dues checkoff, arbitration and methods for settling grievances. Both company and union agreed to a government fact-finding recommendation for an 18-cent an hour wage increase.

In addition to 30,000 workers in 11 International Harvester plants, 12,500 employees in six plants of Allis-Chalmers and J. I. Case remained out over contract differences.

Coal Snag

While the government kept one eye on the farm machinery situation, it trained another on the coal industry, where parleys between John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and the operators sagged over the UMW chieftain's demands for the creation of a health and welfare fund.

Dropped last year during the bargaining over a new contract, the health and welfare fund issue was raised again this year by Lewis, who gave it No. 1 position on the negotiating agenda. Asserting that it would cost them $50,000,000 annually, the operators proposed the creation of a joint committee to study an accident compensation plan as an alternative.

As a walkout in the industry loomed, the government prepared to control the shipment of an estimated 29,000,000 tons of bituminous coal above ground. Steel spokesmen said a miners' walkout might result in the restriction of production within two weeks.

New UAW Chief

A concerted drive to organize the white collar workers in the automobile industry loomed with the election of fiery, red-haired Walter Reuther as the new CIO-United Automobile Workers president. Avowed foe of the communist faction within the UAW, Reuther thwarted the re-election hopes of R. J. Thomas, head of the union since 1938, who enjoyed leftist support.

In winning the presidency of the biggest union in the world, Reuther announced the organization of the white collar workers in the industry as one of his No. 1 goals. He also said an educational program would be undertaken to interest the membership in union activity and the UAW would strive for industry-wide instead of company-wide bargaining to correct wage and working inequalities between plants.

The stormy petrel of the UAW, and head of the union's General Motors division, Reuther is 39 and destined for major leadership in the American labor movement. Fired from the tool department of the Ford Motor company for union activity in 1933, he organized an AFL local in the plant in 1935 and then led his men into the CIO in 1938.

Children Handicapped

The American Society for the Hard of Hearing estimates that one million children, not including the totally deaf, are suffering from some form of auditory impairment.

Since a person may suffer almost a 40 per cent hearing loss before it is observable, a child may be seriously maladjusted before anything is done to help him, the authorities add.

Washington Digest
German Radio Takes
New Tone Under U. S.

News, Education and Swing Replace Old Nazi Line; English Grammar Lessons Prove Popular Among Listeners.

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON. — Gradually the net is closing in about the "ether traitors." American citizens who broadcast in English from Berlin and elsewhere for the Nazis before and during the war. Recently the (infamous "Axis Sally" was taken into custody. She devoted her air time to making G.I.s feel homesick overseas by dwelling on the joys and comforts back in the good old U. S. A. Another traitor is "Kaltenbach," an ex-Iowa boy who tried to awake nostalgia with corny realism about life down on the farm.

Then there is Constance Drexel, who pretended to be a cultured member of the old Philadelphia family whose name she used as a pseudonym when she worked on American newspapers. She was really born in Germany and brought here by her father who became naturalized. She was known here as pro-Hitler before the war. She made one broadcast for an American network when I was in Berlin, but I helped to make it her last.

It is hard to prove treason. You have to have witnesses who actually saw the person in the act of broadcasting. When the Americans took over German radio our methods were far different. We used a proved weapon—the truth.

U. S. Controls
Air Facilities

When active military operations changed over to occupation, the Information Control division laid down a three-point program. The plan was negative at first—the wiping out of all Nazi media, including radio, to make way for American media.

Next came actual broadcasting. The early broadcasts were very stark and stern. Decrees, regulations, warnings to the people. No concerts, no plays, no music. Now we are in phase two and the Germans are finding more variety along the radio dial. Entertainment, as well as news and education, is being provided by the ICD.

The third phase will begin when German radio stations are turned over to the Germans themselves, much as the newspapers have been allowed to operate under German direction under license. A military government official examines and criticizes the newspaper after it appears. Presumably, radio programs will be supervised in roughly the same manner.

The first station to be taken over by the Americans was Radio Luxembourg. It was in pretty good shape, for the Germans had left in too much of a hurry to do any big-scale demolition.

Next station to go to work for the army was Frankfurt; then Stuttgart; then Munich. When I was in Germany, because of trouble with land lines, the Munich-Stuttgart-Frankfurt network was not running regularly. Perhaps it is now.

Radio is supported in Germany as it was before the war, by a tax on each set. Why, I asked, couldn't a radio owner conceal his set and thus get out of paying the tax? I was told there was no danger of that. If anyone concealed the fact he had a radio, his jealous neighbors would tell on him. The Nazi squealing habit is still strong in Germany.

All programs at present are in the German language, except for a few in Polish for displaced persons in camps. There is a large proportion of factual world news broadcast and an increasing number of German musical programs.

On the educational side, there are talks by German officials, and American military government men. Some jazz and swing, and lately, plays. The program periods have been running as long as 45 minutes which seems a long time for American radio fans—and now they are being extended to one hour.

Poll Reaction
Of Audience

At first it wasn't easy to find out whether Germans liked what they were getting on the ICD schedule of broadcasts. Fan letters, the barometers of approval and disapproval in America, were banned up until December of last year. However, reactions are coming in now, as the ICD conducts many secret radio polls—employing the methods of polltakers in this country. The surveys which I saw indicated that, on the whole, the programs are popular with the Germans—with certain reservations.

Take factual world news, for example. Germans are anxious to hear this, but they don't always understand it. For 12 years they have been taught to be suspicious of all news. And yet, in spite of this skepticism, they are so saturated with the propaganda idea that in some cases they don't like facts.

This came out in a conference with teenagers who said they preferred the Russian broadcasts to ours. Asked why, they said there was too much propaganda in ours.

I went over this answer with one of the psychological experts. He explained it this way: straight news without comment forces the listener to think for himself. This disturbs the German teenager, and he blames the program, calling it "propaganda."

English grammar lessons far out-run American music as radio favorites in Germany. All Germans want to learn English. This desire seems to stem from the long-range hope that some day America's gates will be open, and from the opportunistic feeling that the conqueror can get along better with the conqueror if they're both talking the same language.

Zionists Wary
Of Russians

For years, contending European nations have battled for the friendship and support of the Arabs. This struggle was intensified when, long before World War I, the Germans started their "drang nach Osten" and the British heightened their efforts to placate the Arabs in order to protect their empire's life-lines and to prevent a spread of a disaffection to the Moslems of India.

Now Russia steps into the picture. Reports from Baghdad tell us of the spread of communist sympathies throughout the Middle East. And the Jews of Palestine find their troubles increasing.

The announcement of Britain's granting of independence to Trans-Jordan heightened Zionist resentment, for Trans-Jordan is a part of Greater Palestine and was supposed to be included in the territory allotted to the National Jewish home.

The Zionists claim the British action is part of a scheme to prevent the United Nations from creating a trusteeship of Greater Palestine which would include Trans-Jordan, as the old League of Nations mandate did. They also make the charge that the purpose is "to thwart Jewish rights by bolstering pro-Axis forces."

The Zionists feel too that Russia is playing a similar game. They point out the inconsistency of making friends with the Arabs, whose party leader in Palestine, Jamal Hussein, is calling for the reinstatement of the Grand Mufti, a Hitler collaborator.

In his testimony before the British-American inquiry committee Hussein said: "Germany was not our enemy and therefore we had no interest in the war," adding: "I've read somewhere that it was a Jewish war."

The Zionists believe they have discovered an additional reason for Russian animosity toward their efforts in Palestine. Like most of the causes of racial and other ructions, it is fear. They say that the Soviets are afraid that if the Palestine colony becomes a success it will prove an entering wedge for western capitalism in the Near East. There is really nothing in common between the feudalist, unprogressive Arab world and the economic and social principles represented by the Soviet system. The Arabs can't do the Soviets any harm but they could be used, the Zionists say, to hamstring what might become a live and up-and-coming Jewish nation imbued with capitalistic ideas, operating too close for communistic comfort.

Those fierce tribesmen, the Kurds, don't rhyme with Miss Muffet's curds. The "U" is long in the Kurds, just as they are long in beligerency.

If the people don't want prohibition of black marketeering any more than they wanted prohibition on the sale of liquor, inflation can't be stopped.

I don't like the derogative use of this word "puppet"—puppet parliaments, puppet rulers—it sounds so much like "puppy." I feel I have to apologize to my dog.

Tomorrow is Forever

by GWEN BRISTOW

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herlong, motion picture producer, met and married Elizabeth, whose first husband, Arthur Kittredge, was reported killed in World War I, but who later, unrecognized, went to work for Spratt under the name of Kessler. Dick Herlong enlisted in the Marines to do his part in finishing the mess for all time. Elizabeth finally recognized Kessler. She told him that she knew him to be her former husband. He denied the fact, spent considerable time in explaining that she was living in the past—that she should forget the dreams of her youth and live only for her husband and children. He said unless she could believe him, he must go away.

CHAPTER XXII

In looking for that dream of security, you have been looking for Arthur," he added, firmly and incisively. "If I were your first husband, Mrs. Herlong, I would tell you exactly what I am telling you now. You don't want him back."

Elizabeth passed her hand over her forehead, pushing back her hair. The gesture seemed to clear her eyes and her mind with them. She said, "You are not Arthur, then?"

"No. Your first husband is dead. You can't have him back, and I repeat, you don't want him back."

He paused to be sure she was listening. She nodded to assure him that she was.

Elizabeth thought of the time when Cherry, as a baby, had been so ill they had feared they might lose her. She remembered when Spratt had lost his job, hit from behind by a friend he had trusted. She thought of the night when she had sobbed secretly on his shoulder at Dick's joining the Marines, and he had said, "What do you suppose I'm here for?"

"Yes!" she exclaimed. "Oh yes." "I can be a friend of you both," said Kessler, "a dear friend perhaps, but I'm outside your essential life because I did not help you build it. Don't let me threaten it now, Mrs. Herlong! You can keep it—that depends on your self-command, not on mine. No human being can destroy the structure of a marriage except the two who made it. It is the one human edifice that is impregnable except from within. Keep it. You need it."

Elizabeth smiled, without realizing that she was doing so. "Yes," she said to him, "I need it."

Elizabeth had a sense of freedom like nothing she had ever felt before. She drew a long breath. Her mind flashed back to that bright year with Arthur, and then lingered on her twenty years with Spratt. The two periods were as different in meaning as they were in length. She had known all along that the second had a value greater than the first. But she had never placed them side by side, as Kessler had made her do today, to see with vehement clarity how her love for Spratt overpowered anything she had ever shared with Arthur.

"Thank you, Mr. Kessler," she said in a low voice. "You don't know what you've done for me."

But she remembered that there was something else she could do for him. He had told her so last night. She roused herself to speak.

She said, "Mr. Kessler, last night you suggested you had a favor to ask of me. I hope that's still true."

Kessler looked up, with a slight start as though her voice had recalled him from a great distance. For a moment he seemed to be getting his thoughts in order. Then he answered, "Yes, it's still true."

"I told you last night," said Elizabeth, "I'd be happy to do anything in my power for you. After what you have done for me today, I'd like to repeat that in capitals."

Kessler smiled at her. She had been right; he did believe that she was fully persuaded, and that was what he wanted. "Thank you, Mrs. Herlong. I want to put, shall we say, a part of tomorrow in your hands, Margaret."

She was astonished. "You mean you want me to take her?"

He nodded. "But don't you want her? I thought you loved her so much."

"I do love her. But I shan't be here always."

Elizabeth sat up straight, holding the arms of her chair. "What do you mean?"

"Look at me, Mrs. Herlong," he said quietly. "Haven't you ever wondered how I have lived as long as this?"

"No, I haven't. Your life has hardly seemed to depend on physical strength—Mr. Kessler, forgive me! What a strain we have put on you! Dick, myself, all of us—we never stopped to realize you were ill."

"That doesn't matter," he answered, so quickly that it was like an interruption. "Please don't think it matters. If you let this trouble you I'll be sorry I spoke. Please!"

he exclaimed insistently, for she had risen to her feet, ready to go before he wore himself out with any more talking.

Elizabeth sat down again. "Mr. Kessler, of course I'll take Margaret. I'll take her now if you'll let me. But don't you want to come with her? Why don't you let me take care of you, instead of staying here with nobody but a hired housekeeper? If you only knew how much I should like to do it!"

"No, no, that's not what I want. Thank you, but I only wanted to tell you that it's very unlikely I'll live as long as Margaret will need protection. When I can no longer be her father, will you be her mother?"

"Of course I will. No, please don't start to thank me. Spratt and I both love children; now that ours are growing up we've often said we wished we had another younger than Brian. So don't start being grateful."

"You may get a great reward for it," said Kessler. "I told you how brilliant her parents were."

"Oh, that. I hope she's all you think her, but if she isn't, it makes no difference. She's a dear child. With all my heart I hope she won't need us, but if she does, we'll be very happy to have her. Don't fear for Margaret's future." She spoke quickly and sincerely.

"I won't," he promised her smiling. "Not for hers, nor for yours."

"Thank you. Now I'm going. You are very tired."

Kessler, who had risen when she did, had sat down as though too tired

"Poor kid, of course we'll take her."

to keep standing. He had sat holding his cane rigidly, looking at it instead of at her while she talked. But he had listened, with a faint smile of gratitude, as though what she was saying brought him a great sense of peace. Now, still without looking up, he said, very low,

"Thank you, Mrs. Herlong. I hope you will never be so lonely that what anyone will say to you can mean as much as that means to me." He was silent a moment. Then, "Good-by," he said.

"Goodby," said Elizabeth. She went over to him. He was still looking down. She bent and kissed his forehead quickly. Before he could say anything else she went out.

Kessler leaned his arm on the table by him and bent his head to rest on it. She was gone and she seemed to have taken all his strength with her. He thought of Elizabeth, leaving him for years of vigorous living. He was so tired that he could hardly imagine what it was like to be vigorous.

But he had given her those years to come. She had told him so, not dreaming how much her words meant to him. He was convinced now that she did not know who he was. But he knew, and that was enough. When she told him what Arthur had done for her, it was as though she was telling him that at last he had finished what he had set out to do that day in the German hospital. He thought of what he had said to Jacoby that day. "You never loved a woman enough to die for her." It had been hard enough to die for her once. But in retrospect that seemed almost easy compared to what it had cost him today to kill his image in her soul.

When Spratt came home that evening she only told him Kessler was ill and had asked if they would take care of Margaret. Spratt agreed without hesitation.

"Poor kid, of course we'll take her. You won't mind if she's a bit of trouble?"

"Of course not," said Elizabeth. She nearly added, "Even if she were ill," but checked herself. That would require explaining, and she did not yet feel ready to explain. Spratt was talking.

"Look here, Elizabeth, maybe that guy is too sick to work and is just keeping it up because he can't afford to stop. Do you suppose we could persuade him to take a rest?"

"Oh Spratt, please try! Make him let us pay for it. And please—"

"Yes, what?"

"Tell him it was your idea. I don't think he'd take it from me."

"What an intense sort of person you are," Spratt observed with a grin. "You feel things all the way through. All right, I'll give him a ring in the morning. Rather late for it tonight."

The next morning she was up, having coffee, when Spratt came into her room.

"Thought I'd call Kessler now," he said. "If he feels like seeing me I can go by on the way to the studio." He gave her a sidelong glance. "Now that you've slept on it, do you still feel like having Margaret here?"

"Yes, if you do."

"It's all right with me."

"You're a prince, Spratt."

He chuckled. "Not me. You're the one who'll have to bother about her clothes and lessons and teeth and disposition. It won't be as easy as looking out for your own children, either."

"Who said they were ever easy?"

"Your mind's made up, then?"

She nodded.

"Okay," said Spratt. He sat down on her chaise-longue and picked up the phone.

"This is Spratt Herlong. Can I speak to Mr. Kessler? . . . What? . . . Yes . . . Yes . . . I understand. . . I'll be right over."

He set down the phone, and turned to Elizabeth, who had been listening in alarm. "What is it, Spratt?" she asked.

Spratt wet his lips, and shook his head slowly, as though trying to get used to what it was he had just heard. He answered,

"Kessler died this morning at six o'clock."

For a moment he and Elizabeth sat staring at each other. They were speechless with the curious shocked feeling of trying to get their minds adjusted to a sudden announcement of death. Spratt spoke first, saying something about having to call the studio. For a moment he was silent again, then he stood up.

"This is strange," he said slowly. "Like being hit on the head. He never said anything about being that sick. I'd better get over there right away."

"Yes, go right over," said Elizabeth. She felt as if there was a great deal more she should be saying. But she could not get it out now. She asked, "Why didn't he tell us, Spratt?"

"Maybe he didn't know."

"I think he did," said Elizabeth.

Spratt went over to the door and opened it. "I guess we were about his best friends, too," he said guiltily as he went out.

There was nothing more she could do now. Nothing but sit here, staring at the curtains.

But suddenly she remembered that this was not true. There was still something she could do, something she must do at once. She must get Margaret.

Elizabeth sprang up. At the idea of Margaret, alone again in her desolate little world, she found that she was not quite as numb as she had thought. She had to get Margaret now, before the child began to feel utterly abandoned. She began to hurry into her clothes.

When she reached Kessler's apartment she found that Spratt had been there and gone, to attend to the last arrangements somebody had to attend to. The housekeeper was very busy, answering the telephone and carrying out the various instructions Spratt had given her. Margaret was curled up in a big chair in the corner where the tree had stood last Christmas. She had put on her clothes in a haphazard fashion very different from her usual neatness—yesterday's crumpled dress, one shoelace untied, the parting between her pigtails carelessly awry. When Elizabeth approached her Margaret looked up, showing a streaky little face worn out with her having cried too much.

Elizabeth did not say anything. She sat down in the big chair, for Margaret did not take up much room and there was space for her at the edge of the seat. She put her arms around Margaret and drew the untidy little head to rest against her. For a moment Margaret clung to her without speaking, then she gave another choking little sob.

"He died," she said brokenly. "Everybody that belongs to me dies."

Elizabeth felt like sobbing too. She was not used to hating anybody. But with Margaret in her arms she felt that if all the words of hate in every language could be rolled into one they could not express how much she hated fascists and what they accomplished.

"Not everybody, Margaret," she said gently. "We belong to you too." Margaret looked up at her again. She shook her head slowly.

"No, you don't belong to me."

"Don't you want us to belong to you?"

Margaret was puzzled. "You?" she asked. "You and who else?"

"My husband, and all our family. We want you to belong to us. And we won't leave you. You'll stay with us always."

The Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

by DREW PEARSON

WAR NOT EXPECTED

WASHINGTON. — That the Truman cabinet is not looking for war in the near future, despite warlike talk, was indicated at a secret session of the senate military affairs committee recently.

When Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of War Patterson testified in favor of an extension of the selective service act, the figures they presented on planned strength of the army and navy were exactly the same as those presented early in January. In other words, they proposed an army of barely over a million men by July of 1947.

The senators had expected that because of the complicated international situation a larger army would be asked for, but the war and state departments made no such request. When one senator asked how it happened that there was no "emergency" planning, Secretary Byrnes refused to answer. He passed the question to Secretary Patterson, who also did not reply.

WALLACE SPEECH CENSORED

It wasn't supposed to be known outside the cabinet, but Henry Wallace's speech at the Jackson Day dinner was censored — by President Truman himself. Wallace had one line in his speech which he thought would answer Republican critics. It read:

"Abraham Lincoln was not a member of our party. But he was certainly a fellow traveler."

Truman thought such a reference to the martyred Lincoln might be misunderstood and cut it out. Wallace was glad to concur.

MEN'S SUITS

It still looks like a long wait before veterans can get the clothing they need. The office of war mobilization and reconversion will soon bring out a report on men's clothing showing a need for 40 million suits this year but production plans for only about 28 million.

The report will also show that first quarter production has been only about 5 million, and officials of the civilian production administration are worried sick that even the goal of 28 million suits for 1946 will not be met.

There is no sign yet that the increase in prices granted this month by OPA will mean more men's suits. There are indications, however, that large stocks of suits are being held off the market in the hope that price control will not be extended beyond June.

JOHN L. LEWIS

For years John L. Lewis has been one of labor's top negotiators. Usually he has his facts cold. Recently, however, while arguing safety precautions with Harry Moses, an important Pittsburgh mine operator, he said:

"Why, Harry, your father is a good illustration of why we need these safeguards. Everybody knows him as a veteran coal man, and we've all seen him limping around for 50 years because of a mine accident. So how can you sit there and defy 'us' the safeguards to prevent the same sort of thing from happening to other miners?"

"John," replied Moses, "I don't know where you got your information about my father—but it wasn't so good. I'll tell you how he hurt his leg. It wasn't in a coal mine, it was playing baseball. He broke his leg sliding into second."

NOTE — Bureau of mine officials heartily endorse Lewis' demands for better safety precautions in the mines.

DIPLOMATIC VICTORY

During the heyday of the Roosevelt administration, Vice Pres. Jack Garner gave a dinner for the late Will Rogers at which the cowboy humorist, commenting on a forthcoming international conference, said:

"This country has won every war, but lost every conference."

Recently, however, one international conference closed at Savannah, Ga., at which the United States won every single round. It was the first world monetary conference, and the man responsible for the American victory was hard-hitting Fred Vinson, secretary of the treasury.

His chief battle was over the location of the international bank and the stabilization fund to be established under the Bretton Woods plan. The British wanted the bank and fund located in New York, but Secretary Vinson wanted them in Washington. When the vote was taken, there was only one vote against Washington — Lord Keynes' vote.

CAPITAL CHAFF

Two movie companies are bidding for "Saints and Strangers," the new best seller written by George Willison. . . . Former Democratic Sen. Clarence Dill of Washington is being urged for one of the vacant assistant secretaryships of the interior department. . . . Jim Landis may be headed for a new important administration job soon. . . . New Mexico's Gov. Jack Dempsey decided after two talks with President Truman that he would not oppose Sen. Dennis Chavez, N. M. . . .

How to Fight the Menace of FIRE

A Wet Towel and a Flashlight may save your life! — says the National Safety Council

1 Call the fire department at first opportunity! Fire is always dangerous—especially at night. Most fires do occur at night! If you smell smoke, reach for your "Eveready" flashlight. Feel doors before opening them. If a door is hot, don't open it!

2 Wet a towel or cloth; cover your face and arms. Close doors behind you to reduce drafts that may fan the flames. If the heat is severe, remember that heat rises—crawl! If trapped on an upper floor, make a rope of bedclothes. As a last resort only, throw out a mattress and jump down onto it.

3 To avoid danger, you have to see it—so keep your flashlight with you until you're safe! Watch for collapsing ceilings... But the best way to avoid fire is to prevent it! Your flashlight gives a much better light than matches or a candle, and it's much safer too!

A rain, variously estimated at from a half to three-quarters of an inch, fell here about nine o'clock Wednesday night. The rain was accompanied by wind and lightning, but no serious damage from either came to our knowledge. The worst reported was the blowing down of some telephone wires crossing the street northwesterly from the depot. A passing automobile ran into the wire entanglement and before being conrolled pulled part of the Chimney flue from the top of the depot.

Wm. Bohl and son, Howard, were appreciated callers at this office Monday. They reported the oat crop in the LaCoste section almost a complete failure on account of the dry weather. The younger man is a veteran of the Pacific war operations.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Professor Zogi, The Magician Marvelous!

Professor Zogi, the magician, came to our town Saturday and put on a performance for the benefit of the Orphanage.

It was quite a show! Among other things, the professor holds a pitcher in his hands, and asks folks what they'd have to drink. Ma Hoskins asks for buttermilk and the professor promptly pours her a rich, creamy glassful.

Then Zeb Collins asks for cider, and out of the same pitcher comes a mug of cider. Doc Hollister next calls for beer—and presto, from the pitcher comes a sparkling glass of beer, white collar and all! "Just goes to show," says Doc, astonished, "that it takes a magician to satisfy all tastes."

From where I sit, the professor has a mighty good act... one that points a moral too. Tastes differ—but people can have a friendly, happy time enjoying the beverage that each prefers—and being tolerant of one another's preferences.

74th BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED

Surprise! Surprise! Last Saturday night, April 6th, cars headed toward the home of John G. Brucks.
'Twas Mrs. Brucks' birthday the next day and the family planned a surprise party and had all the friends and neighbors invited too.

About eight o'clock, everything was quiet. Suddenly many auto horns sounded, and cars and more cars turned into the little lane and then Mrs. Brucks came out into the yard. We say she was surprised.

The evening was spent just having a good time, talking among old friends and just spending the time resting and having good old-fashioned fun. Mrs. Brucks received many beautiful gifts.

Sandwiches, cake, and cold drink were served and after eating all we could eat no more, it was soon twelve o'clock and Mrs. Brucks was 74 years old. Goodbyes were said and the guests left, happy and wishing Grandma Brucks many more

Hold on to that "Million-Dollar Rain"

That welcome rain that brings new life to your land, crops and livestock is the traditional "million-dollar rain" known to every farmer and rancher.

There is an old saying, "You can't do much about the weather." But you can do a great deal about what the weather does to your land. Rain can bring relief after drouth and is worth that million dollars —or it can be a savage enemy that "dashes off with grit in its teeth and tears down our soil like a billion furious buzz saws."

Water that "walks downhill" is your ally in increasing the production of your land. And one secret of handling rainfall properly is "farming on the level"—by strip cropping, contour plowing, terracing. Cover crops, grassed waterways, dams and farm ponds also help control the destructive power of rain. Then you hold the rain where it falls. Surface run-off is slowed down to the point where it doesn't erode your topsoil away. And as your water "walks downhill," it soaks into the soil, makes plant food nutrients available to the roots of crops and, penetrating further, fills up nature's great underground reservoirs.

Water thus stored in the subsoil is the source of the wells and springs which supply homes and farms and ranches. For years this "water table" has been dropping very seriously in some sections. But where soil conservation has been practiced over large areas, the lowering of the "water table" has been a less serious problem. Soil and water can never be divorced in any good land management program.
These two great resources are wedded for all time,
and from their union comes the wealth of America's agriculture and the prosperity of the nation.

Recipe for Easter Ham

The mellow flavor of ham rates it one of the most popular of meats. Glaze your ham with honey, marmalade or maple syrup to save sugar. Place
the ham, fat side up, on rack in uncovered pan.
No need, as the fat will baste the ham naturally. Bake in a moderately slow oven until tender. Three to four hours will be enough.
Garnish the platter with pickled peaches or apricots, or hot spiced orange slices.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW!

What is the meaning of the expression "farming
on the level?"

With what groups of people must a meat packing company like Swift & Company co-operate to operate successfully?

Who must earn a fair profit for the livestock-and-meat industry to operate?

Why is it important to make water "walk downhill?"

Answers to these questions may be found in the various articles which are printed elsewhere on this page.

THE EDITOR'S COLUMN

In addition to being a business corporation, Swift & Company is people—62,000 folks like you and me who have pooled their savings to build a business. These savings are invested in plants and equipment, in livestock and other raw materials, and in all the many things that make up Swift & Company.

Without people there could be no business, no Swift & Company. There must be people (shareholders) to supply the capital; others (farmers and ranchers) to supply the raw materials; many thousands (employees) who work with their heads and hands for the company; and the millions of consumers who buy the meat and other products.

The success of a business enterprise depends on how these various groups of people get along together. In other words, there must be goodwill and cooperation between the owners of Swift & Company and livestock producers, employees, and the company's customers.

To maintain goodwill we know that Swift & Company must: 1) pay fair prices for raw materials, including livestock; 2) pay a good day's pay for a good day's work; 3) provide the money to keep plants and facilities efficient; 4) pay Federal, State and Municipal taxes; 5) earn a profit to give our owners a fair return on their invested savings.

The management of Swift & Company recognizes this five-fold responsibility to the various groups of people who make our business. It is to their interest that we manage our business efficiently, that we earn a sufficient profit to let us continue contributing to the well-being of more and more people.

WOOL BLINDNESS is a definite handicap. Open-faced sheep, during a test in New Mexico, produced an average of 12% more pounds of lamb per ewe.
Wool on the face hindered sheep in finding feed and resulted in some becoming separated from the flock.
However, the flock in the test excelled by 25% the wool production of commercial flocks.

BRED TO MEET PRODUCER NEEDS

By E. J. WARWICK, The State College of Washington

A successful example of sound breeding methods in improving farm animals is the development of the Columbia breed of sheep for the Northern and Northwestern states.

When the Western sheep industry began shifting from a "one-crop" industry—wool—to production of both lambs and wool, the need for a true breeding type of sheep, combining the vigor, hardiness and flocking instinct of the fine wool types, with the size, prolificacy, and desirable carcass characteristics of the mutton types, was clearly indicated. Recognizing this need, U. S. Department of Agriculture scientists began developing such a breed from crosses between Rambouillet ewes (a fine wool type), and Lincoln rams (a mutton type).

Today, after more than 30 years of intense selection for desirable characteristics, the Columbia is widely used on better ranges of the West. Animals of this breed are large, rugged, vigorous, prolific and productive.

Development of the Columbia breed has been successful because: (1) it was created to fill a real need;
(2) the breeding program was carefully planned to preserve and concentrate the germ plasm of superior individuals; (3) rigid culling was practiced; and (4) practical production factors have been emphasized in the selection program.

Adherence to these simple principles will result in further improvements of other farm animals.

LOOKING AHEAD

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President—Harding College

All to Gain

Strikes in the automobile industry since V-J Day have cost the nation half a billion dollars in purchasing power already this year . . . and more of the big threatened strikes have occurred: This is the substance of a statement made to the press late in October by George E. Hanney of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, in a position to speak for the whole industry.

In his supporting statements, Mr. Hanney quoted figures which he is able to get in advance of any other news source. He declared that, on account of strikes in the plants of suppliers and makers of automobile parts, 350,000 fewer cars will be sold this year. Anybody old enough to drive a car knows this means 350 million dollars less money spent for cars this year.

Everybody Hurt

Cars on the road are a symbol of money in circulation; people going places and spending. Hotels, health resorts, oil stations and motor maintenance shops are having business turned away from them by disputes. Prosperity follows the production of things useful and desirable for people who buy. Probably no useful thing enjoys a greater popular demand today than the automobile.

The strike, during the progress of America's worst war, actually retarded military production. Our generals said it hindered the delivery of machines and munitions to help America's fighting men win battles. And now it is interfering with the chances of those same men for getting steady jobs at good pay after they have finished winning the war. This is the road to economic ruin.

Let Wages Advance

Speedy recovery is more important to the American people now than any money consideration or any point of pride being contended. I am a man of relatively small earning and I believe I can speak for millions of Americans who don't care how high wages go so long as they don't upset national economy. Moreover my faith in working men makes me believe they want no wage scale that will destroy jobs.

Ever since the automobile business grew out of its awkward age, it has operated on sound American principles: (1) Large investments in equipment, (2) more output per worker on account of the investment, (3) lower prices per car because of the big output, (4) more sales because of the low prices, (5) larger profits because of the volume sales, and (6) higher wages made possible by more profits.

Minutes Matter Now

The demand for automobiles is such today that car production per worker might exceed all records and still not satisfy the public appetite for new rolling stock. Until production rates dwarf all previous records, there is no visible limit to the earning power of a skilled automobile worker. But there is the rub! An enemy intervenes. The strike has thrown a brake on production.

A war-impooverished world is looking to the United States to win a hard game. Uncle Sam has passed the ball to Detroit, and it is down to the second yard line. Investments, yes; production, no! The opposition's squabble-play can defeat us. America has everything it takes to win but teamwork. Why not produce now to meet the needs of a desperate public, with the disputes to be settled later?

The Youth in Business

By C. D. Benson

Dean, Schools of Business
International Correspondence

DOES secretarial work offer opportunities to men? The answer unquestionably is yes. Many executives prefer male secretaries. Men, when necessary, stand the strain of long hours of work under trying conditions. They are not greatly given to fits of temperment or easily upset because the boss is irritable or unappreciative. They intend to make business their career and, therefore, are likely to take an interest in every detail of their employers' work.

There is a shortage of male secretaries. Why is this the case? The answer is that the first step in becoming a secretary is the acquiring of the ability to take and transcribe dictation quickly and accurately. Few men today become proficient in shorthand and typewriting. They are apt to think that the study of stenography is only for women. This is a mistake. The ability to take notes rapidly and to operate a typewriter is almost invaluable in both business and private life.

The salaries of private secretaries whether men or women are high and to men at least the position opens many opportunities for advancement. Secretaries to executives themselves become executives with such titles as assistant to the president or assistant to the vice president. Because of their knowledge of the details of the business they are often given high positions in other departments.

Second Wife

By R. H. WILKINSON

Associated Newspapers.
WNU Features.

LIFE began for Lionel Ainsley when he met Cynthia Trumble. She was the fulfillment of dreams that were dreamed while he sat alone by his camp fire in the wilderness, while he listened to the hoots of owls and the screeches of bobcats and wondered if the time would ever come when somebody sat with him by the fire and listened to the night sounds that had been his only companions since graduation from the state school of forestry two years ago.

He met Cynthia when he came out of the bush one June for a short vacation. From the first there was an understanding between them. They were married the day he was due to start back into the woods.

Lionel didn't know how it happened. He remembered telling her about the forests and the strange night noises and the sound of water lapping against the side of a canoe, and the sunsets and sunrises—and she had been thrilled.

The first week was deliciously sweet. Cynthia had been a country girl and because Lionel had his first real love, she eagerly looked forward to spending weeks alone with him in the wilderness.

That was before they reached Woodsville, where Lionel had his base. There was a big packing company at Woodsville, run by a man named Benton, who had a son named Austin. Fresh from college, young Austin had come to Woodsville to learn the packing business. Quite naturally the place was dull and boring to one so sophisticated.

Then Lionel and his new wife arrived, and Austin looked on Cynthia and vowed to know her better. Austin had that polish about him that attracts women. He was an experienced young man, and when he smiled at Cynthia she felt instantly that irresistible desire to play with fire. It was a desire she couldn't quite explain. She knew only that after a week in the wilderness with Lionel she wanted to see people, to laugh and play and be gay. But most of all she wanted to charm young Austin Benton with her beauty.

So when Lionel finally headed his canoe toward Woodsville to replenish their supplies, Cynthia's pulse quickened a little, and she kept her eyes fastened on the bend in the river that would first reveal the great buildings of the packing house.

What followed made Cynthia a little ashamed. She hated to hurt Lionel, he was so fine and generous and kind. And so devoted. She thought he'd object to a divorce, and it was a little disappointing when he agreed readily.

She saw the hurt look in his eyes and almost hated herself. Then she thought of young Austin, and she knew that the shame and hurt and pity would all vanish once she was again in his arms.

And so Lionel went back into the wilderness shortly after the divorce was granted, and Cynthia, free and exultant, waited for Austin to come to her.

He came at last and stood near where she lay in the hammock. It was night and she could not see his face.

"Cynthia, darling, why did you do it? I feel like a cad, breaking up you and Lionel like that. He's a good sort and—well, I meant nothing by my attentions. It was all—well, sort of fun."

"But, darling, you do love me? You do want to marry me?" Misgivings chilled her heart.

Austin ran a finger under his collar. "Well, you see, Cynthia—you see, I can't, that is—I'm already married!"

Cynthia nearly swooned. When she again opened her eyes Austin was gone. She was alone. Alone! No one to go to, no one to help her, no one to love her. Panic gripped her, then fear. Later she thought of Lionel. She had not known how to appreciate him. She'd wait. He'd be out of the bush again in three weeks. He'd understand. He was so big and fine and generous.

It was almost unbearable, that waiting. The people of Woodsville looked at her curiously and whispered among themselves. Three weeks passed and Lionel didn't return. Another week dragged by and still no sign of him. Her funds were nearly exhausted.

Then, at last, Lionel came back.

Cynthia, watching from the veranda of her rooming house, saw his canoe sweep into sight, and her heart leaped. Lionel at last! Lionel, whom she'd loved and would love again. Lionel who had loved her so tenderly. Love like his didn't die. She had treated him miserably, but she'd admit all that, ask his forgiveness.

And, then, the canoe neared the shore and Cynthia went down to meet it. Lionel saw her, and waved a greeting.

Cynthia's heart stopped beating. There was someone else in the canoe. A girl. The canoe touched the shore. Lionel grinned at her happily. "Cynthia, it's good to see you again. Hope you and Austin are happy." He gestured toward the girl, who had turned to stare. "Cynthia, meet the new Mrs. Ainsley."

ANSWERS for Victory Gardeners

What Are Plant Lice That I Hear So Much About?

Plant lice is the term used commonly when referring to aphids. They are called plant lice because they cling to the plant like lice and live by sucking juices from the tender shoots, leaves and soft bark. They remain practically stationary after they once settle and give birth to young at the rate of 8 to 10 per day. These young are ready to do likewise in about two weeks. You can see how they multiply. Only the fact that nature destroys the aphids in huge quantity prevents their doing untold damage.

Where Do Plant Lice Come From in the First Place?

Plant lice or aphids have a peculiar way of starting their first generations in the spring. They hatch from eggs which have been hidden away on trash or in other safe places over winter. The first generation that hatches can fly and spreads about on favorite vegetation. The next generations are born without wings and continue on their host plant, giving birth to new generations.

You can begin to see why we recommend clearing up the garden late in the fall or very early in the spring, burning all trash, leaves and other material that might be used as a hiding place for aphid eggs and other insect carry overs.

Are All Garden Plants Attacked By Plant Lice?

Just as there are many kinds of butterflies so there are many kinds of aphids—they are even of different colors. Some are black, some rose colored, some green. There is an aphid for almost every plant you will grow in the garden, and every aphid is a heavy eater, or we should say a heavy drinker, for he is a sap sucker and his food is taken in liquid form through his snout, which is especially built for the purpose.

Is Aphid Damage Really Serious?

Aphids can be terribly destructive. Scientists have counted in the neighborhood of 25,000 individual aphids on a single tomato plant. If you had 25,000 mosquitoes sitting on you night and day, constantly drawing blood, it would be a severe drain on your system. Your garden plants find this same drain on their life blood which is the sap.

Is There Any Other Damage From Plant Lice?

The plant louse or aphid, as we have said, operates by sticking his snout into the tender tissues of any part of the plant he can penetrate for the purpose of withdrawing sap. There is in the saliva of the plant louse an irritating substance that will almost ruin a crop.

How Can Plant Lice Be Controlled?

Black Leaf 40 is death to plant lice, which it kills not only by contact but by fumes which arise under the foliage from the spray. You can spread all the lead arsenate you wish on the surface of the plant and yet do no harm to plant lice. They simply drill through and draw the fresh sap from beneath with their snouts. A contact spray is needed.

RED CROSS HOME NURSING

WHAT'S YOUR BEDSIDE MANNER?

THIS IS GRANDPA, CROSS AND GROUCHY, confined to bed with chronic arthritis. His arms are cold so you bundle heavy blankets around his shoulders and then wonder why he complains, "The pain in my joints is worse." His feet are cold so you tuck a hot water bottle, filled to the top with scalding water, next to them and his thanks is, "Are you trying to burn me to death?" So in desperation you turn to...

RED CROSS HOME NURSING where you learn the easy way to care for bedridden patients—how to arrange equipment to save yourself steps—how to prevent bedsores—how to bathe, feed, and comfort an impatient patient. And now...

THIS IS GRANDPA, COMFORTABLE AND HAPPY, even though he is still in bed with arthritis. A lightweight bed jacket gives him warmth without weight. A hot water bottle wrapped in towels keeps his feet warm. And he pulls contentedly on his pipe with your full approval because you understand that clinging to a favorite habit is more important to Grandpa's happiness than a clean, but empty, ashtray.

RED CROSS HOME NURSING

WHAT'S YOUR IQ ON SYMPTOMS?

SILLY SUSAN—When Johnny is tired and irritable, complains of a headache and sore throat, she tells him to run out and play with the other youngsters. "Fresh air will make you feel better." A few hours later Johnny is running a high temperature and his face is covered with angry red spots. Susan frantically telephones the doctor exclaiming helplessly that Johnny is dying of some strange disease.

CAPABLE CATHY—She takes Billy's temperature and pulse, reporting his symptoms accurately to the doctor by telephone. She puts him to bed immediately in a room by himself, and feeds him only liquids until the doctor arrives. When the doctor says Billy may be coming down with measles, she knows her prompt action has made Billy's recovery quicker and protected other children in the community.

HELP YOUR DOCTOR—HOME NURSING SHOWS YOU HOW—Your doctor is busier than ever now. He'll appreciate your intelligent assistance when illness strikes your family. Learn how to give simple treatments, how to feed a patient on a soft, liquid, or normal diet, and how to keep a patient comfortable in bed. All courses are taught by a professional nurse.

If there is no home nursing course offered at present in your community, ask your Red Cross chapter how you may help organize one.

Listening Stick Bows To Progress

Today the "listening stick," like the bustle, the mustache cup and the rubber collar is only a museum piece, but there are many oldtime telegraphers who recall pleasantly the days when it was the magic wand, the mahogany baton that marked their trade.

The gentle tick of a pocket watch when conducted to the ear through a listening stick can be heard even in a noisy room. This ability to single out sound made the listening stick an important tool to old-time telegraph repeater attendants.

The listening stick was an ingenious but simple device designed by Bell System engineers and made by Western Electric early in the 1900's to aid the telegraph room attendant of the day. And that harried guy needed help. Often hundreds of telegraph instruments, spread on tables in one small room, clattered away simultaneously. Attendants shouted orders back and forth above the din. In this babel of electrical and human voices, even an expert technician had difficulty reaching across a table to pick out one electrical voice from the many. The listening stick did the trick.

Made of finest mahogany, the listening stick is about two feet long and five eighths of an inch thick. It operated much like a doctor's stethoscope. The telegrapher would place one end of the stick containing a hollow wooden earpiece to his ear and the other end against the frame of the instrument. The sound, moving by conduction through the closely knit fibres of the mahogany, focused at his ear. As a doctor judges the regularity of heart beats, the telegraph man determined the clarity of dots and dashes coming through. He could detect any flaws in the adjustment of the instrument and concentrate on one circuit at a time.

Today, thanks to modern switchboards, toll-cable networks, vacuum tube amplification and other improvements, Bell System telegraph repeater rooms are about as quiet as an ordinary living room and the listening stick is just a pleasant memory to old-time "brass pounders."

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

SELECTION OF SMITH TO RUSSIAN POST WISE
WASHINGTON. — The condition of foreign affairs is apt to become more deeply involved before it gets better.

The military man, Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, selected by Mr. Truman to go to Russia as ambassador, has now been sent on his way to Moscow, presumably with new instructions on the course of Soviet-American affairs. My guess would be General Smith will enter into the confusing diplomatic fray with a purpose of establishing the usual direct non-political approach. Diplomats seldom say what they mean; military men speak directly. With them it is a question of "What do you want?" "What have you got?" and "What do you propose to do?" The West Point schooling always has taught practical considerations. For these reasons I judge the permanent mission of General Smith represents a fresh effort by this administration to establish some reasonable and practical grounds for future Russian negotiations.

IRAN DEVELOPMENTS REMAIN DEEP MYSTERY

This under-interpreted venture seems to me to be equally as important as the Iranian developments which are deeply involved in diplomacy. The filing by the Iranian government of a protest against Russia with the United Nations security council in its provisional nature, may have been too happily interpreted in this country. On the face, it represented a decision by the Iranian government to stand for its independence. This naturally has raised American hopes that a new stanchion has been built to resist the encroachments Russia has been making upon the basic peace doctrine of the four freedoms.

The wiles of diplomacy are such however, that this conclusion must be hedged. Some underlying doubts in the situation can be found upon analysis of the strength of the stanchion.

In the first place, the new premier of the Iranian government was established after the Soviets had protested the resistance policy of the former government head. The protest of his minister here to Stalin out of which many rumors have grown.

One story accredited to British circles is that the premier was told by Stalin not only that an appeal to UNO would be considered an unfriendly act—as announced—but his government would be replaced if he tried it. On the other hand, an unaccredited rumor here supposes that the protest will not be pressed before UNO as it occupies only a status on the provisional agenda of the council—that is, it may not be taken up. Regardless of rumors or reports on either side, the status of the protest, of course, is provisional. It can be taken up by a vote of seven members but a veto by Russia would shelve it.

With matters in this involved diplomatic state, the dispatch of General Smith represents the most encouraging development, and a firm one.

As nearly as I can judge, few authorities are being swayed by the appeasement efforts such as represented most conspicuously by the speech of Senator Pepper. Big Three gatherings were important from a publicity standpoint and were necessary when the foundations of peace had not been laid. But now that the agreements have been established, the problem is to put them into effect.

My latest information suggests Russia has nothing of a military nature which we need fear. Specifically she does not have the atom bomb or early prospects of getting it. The bomb formula is so deeply covered by arrangements for secrecy made during the war, that it may be assumed to be safe. The need for appeasement in the face of Russia's threatening diplomatic position is therefore not apparent.

The bellows of diplomacy blow faster, hot and cold. Although President Truman stood by the side of Mr. Churchill when he proposed an Anglo-American alliance, State Secretary Byrnes celebrated St. Patrick's Day shortly thereafter with a definite rejection of the Churchill plan. He submitted the counter-proposal of maintaining sufficient armaments to enforce our influence in world affairs through joint co-operation of UNO. Mr. Churchill likewise dropped his firm manner and pinked Stalin with a needle dipped in humor.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Stop Fooling Yourself

Bell Syndicate.—WNU Features.

"Tom came home and agreed to a divorce, but he took his child away from the mother whose open infidelity, the court decided, indicated that she was an unfit guardian."

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

PERHAPS you are one of the thousands of American women who met another man, while dear old unromantic Bill was away at the war front, and are wondering just how to break it to Bill that you want to be free.

If you are, wake up and stop fooling yourself. This new man wouldn't continue his tender flattery, his generous presents, his breathless admiration of everything you say and do, much longer than the honeymoon. Then he'd turn into the usual exacting, unreasonable, unfeeling sort of everyday man that Bill is.

If there is one glaring lesson that stands written in letters of fire on the skyline of American domestic life, it is that a second marriage is more difficult than a first, more full of bitterness and disillusionment. And a third is worse than a second.

When a woman deliberately turns down a fairly satisfactory, unexciting husband who is far away, for a glamorous sweetheart here at home, she guarantees for herself several years of misery.

After those years, she may win to several forms of content; resignation, philosophy, other interests, a general growing-up. But the first years after a passionate leap from the cooling ardors of one man to the furious embraces of another, is a staggering disappointment. The illicit love that was so absorbing becomes something nearer hatred as the woman realizes what she has sacrificed for it, and how she has complicated every other relationship in her life.

"It's All Over."

It is different when she is widowed, or when years of separation from an unfit mate have lent a sort of dignity to her selection of a new partner. But I am speaking of the many, many wives who write the distant soldier, or greet him on his return with the news that it is all over—a new love has entered their lives.

Take Carolyn Martin, for example, who writes me a frantic letter from Duluth, and threatens to take her own life unless someone does something that will restore her to her old content and self-respect.

Tom Martin went off to war; Carolyn devoted herself to little Patsy Lee. Presently she met Gregory, stationed nearby, uniformed, handsome, with a captain's pay. Gregory had a wife in Virginia, but he was lonely, too, and misunderstood, and he adored Carolyn. They became lovers, and Carolyn's mad passion had its hour.

But look how it all turned out. Tom came home and agreed to a divorce, but he took his child away from the mother whose open infidelity, the court decided, indicated that she was an unfit guardian for Patsy Lee. Carolyn hadn't quite foreseen that.

And Gregory's wife, who also has a young daughter, refused him a divorce; Carolyn hadn't thought of that, either.

"We have quarrelled bitterly," she writes me. "For I know perfectly well that Gregory Brown could have gotten a divorce if he had insisted. But no, I'd given him everything—everything, and he'd tired of me, the way men do. That's all past."

"Why did I start proceedings?"

THE PRICE OF INFIDELITY

During the long months and years of war, many wives became restless, and felt starved emotionally. Their husbands were away in service. As time dragged on, love for the absent spouse often dwindled and faded away. She met some other man at the war plant, or through a friend. This new man seemed to be much more glamorous than her husband had ever been. In time she began to admit to herself that she loved this man, and that she was tired of her husband. She was anxious to be free of him, so she could marry again.

In the case considered today, Miss Norris points out that a woman who thinks another marriage is going to bring her glorious happiness is fooling herself. Life will soon settle into its humdrum pattern. Difficulties and quarrels will come along. The custody of the children may go to the former husband, and so be lost to their mother. Or even greater tragedy may overtake the foolish, selfish woman. She may lose both men.

"But my little Patsy Lee, I can't live without her! I can't bear the thought that she is with Tom's sister, whose own three children will, of course, come first in everything. What did I do that was so wrong—of course I know that it wasn't fair to Tom, but can a woman help loving a man as masterful—as attractive as Greg?"

Easy to Plan Divorce.

And she encloses me three of Greg's old love-letters to give me some idea of the forcefulness of his wooing.

It's easy to talk of breaking up a marriage, everyone is going to be agreeable, in the first stages. "Isn't it better for Greg and me to be happy, even if Tom isn't, than to have all three of us wretched?" the wife asks, with a great air of considering the greater good for the greater number. "Greg," they say, "adores Patsy Lee, he is going to be the kindest daddy in the world to her."

Then the law steps in; the lawyer asks all sorts of dreadful questions; Greg's sister reminds him that he has every right to his child. Carolyn's heart begins to fail her, and a thousand times as the slow processes go on, she wishes she hadn't ever started the series of acts and events that led to this change.

The other day I was in court when a divorce case was being decided; the husband was just back from service overseas, the wife—a pretty young thing who had taken on a lover during her months alone—looked miserably unhappy already. Her mother told me in an aside that the poor child couldn't marry her sweetheart until he got a job. At one stage of the proceedings the girl looked at her husband imploringly.

"Oh, are we both crazy, Alan?" she sobbed. The man growled an angry "yes," the case went on, and one more home was thrown on the junk heap.

Home Gardens Still Needed

President Truman is urging home gardeners to continue the production of vegetables in 1946 because of the worldwide shortage of food. A good garden will produce enough vegetables of various kinds for a 12-month supply. These include fresh vegetables for the growing season of five or six months and a quantity to be canned, dried, stored or frozen for the remaining six or seven months. Records show that a quarter-acre area, if well-managed, will supply a family of five.

BETTER see "Whistle Stop", starring George Raft, because Jorja Curtright's in it. Jorja's going to be one of our biggest stars, or I miss my guess. Not just because her face is very interesting as well as very pretty; she has that extra something that's so necessary. She's come up the hard way, has been studying dramatic technique since she was seven; when she landed in Hollywood from Texas, she went on studying but she needed money, so she got a job as secretary to Seymour Nebenzal, the producer. He told her to wait till the right role for her came along, and when she typed the script of "Whistle Stop," after four years of waiting, she knew that role had come.

Patricia Roc, young British film actress who's starring in "Madonna of the Seven Moons," an English film released by Universal, came to Hollywood last fall to play a lead in their "Canyon Passage"; she's one home now, but wants to come back as soon as possible.

Bette Davis has gone before the cameras for scenes to appear in a short for the Salvation Army, which is titled "Marching Forward to a Better World." She's just finished "A Stolen Life," in which Glenn Ford appears opposite her.

Rita Hayworth's hairdo in "Gilda" annoys the beauty experts who've been predicting that short hair is back in vogue. The picture annoys a lot of people who wonder how it got past the censors. It's got everything, literally, but the kitchen stove!

Patricia Dunlap's not afraid of that big, bad wolf, television, which is scaring so many radio actors; she was a photographer's model before she entered radio. Few of her listeners have seen her, but many love her as "Janet Ryder" in "Bachelor's Children."

There was more than one disappointed star in Hollywood when Joan Bennett was signed for "The Short Happy Life of Francis Macomber"; practically everybody wanted that role. She'll play opposite Gregory Peck and Robert Preston in this Ernest Hemingway story of the African veldt. She recently finished "Scarlet Street," and now starts work in the new picture with Zoltan Korda directing.

Amos 'n Andy have received thousands of fan messages since they've been on the air, but the one that meant the most was the first one. It happened in the crystal set days, when the team made its air debut on an experimental New Orleans station. Programs were broadcast whenever the owner of a set made a request. And a woman four blocks away phoned that she'd heard them "just dandy!"

Joan Crawford presented Michael Curtiz and Ernie Haller, her "Mildred Pierce" director and cameraman, with gold combination knifepencils in appreciation of their work. Incidentally, the first flowers she received after the Academy award was announced were from Bette Davis; don't believe there's a feud there!

Claudette Colbert hasn't made a picture at Metro since she did "Boom Town," with Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr. Now she's going back to appear opposite Walter Pidgeon in "Secret Heart"—giving him a welcome change from Greer Garson!

ODDS AND ENDS—Judy Canova, who's prettier than the movies have let her be, has finally been assigned to do a sophisticated, glamour-girl role in her next film for Columbia. . . . Rehearsal sessions of the CBS "Theater of Romance" will soon become a series of educational film shorts, to be used in teaching dramatic students the art of radio acting. . . . And Jay Jostyn, NBC's "District Attorney," has been invited to give a series of lectures on that subject at Columbia university. . . . Plans to break ground for the museum to house James Melton's ancient automobiles are under way. . . . We hear Connecticut folks don't like the idea.

served with cream cheese for a change:

Orange Honey Bread.
2 tablespoons butter or substitute
1 cup strained honey
1 egg
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
2 1/2 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup orange juice
3/4 cup chopped nutmeats

Blend the softened butter with honey. Add beaten egg and orange rind and mix well. Sift together the dry ingredients and add alternately with the orange juice. Add the nutmeats and mix well. Bake in a greased loaf pan, in a very moderate (325-degree) oven for 1 hour and 10 minutes. Serve with cream cheese or cheese mixed with orange marmalade.

Bananas and whipped cream, two of our favorite foods which all but disappeared during the war years, have returned to grace the table. I know you'll enjoy them both in this food-of-the-gods combination:

Banana Cake.

(Makes 2 9-inch layers)

1/2 cup shortening
1 1/2 cups sugar
2 large eggs
2 cups sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
3/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup sour or buttermilk
1 cup mashed bananas (2 to 3)
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream together shortening and sugar; beat in eggs. Sift together dry ingredients and add alternately with milk. Fold in bananas and flavoring. Bake in well-greased layer cake pans in a moderate (350-degree) oven for 30 to 35 minutes.

You will need 1 cup cream, whipped, and 2 bananas, sliced, for the filling. Or, part of the cake, preferably the center, may be filled with whipped cream and bananas and the rest of the cake iced with chocolate frosting.

We sometimes tend to overlook the simple dishes in our search for something really fresh and inviting. You'll know what I mean when you look at the next recipe for simple foods flavored with something special:

Mocha Bread Pudding.

(Serves 6)

4 tablespoons coffee
1 quart milk
2 tablespoons butter
1 square unsweetened chocolate
2 cups coarse bread or cake crumbs
2 eggs
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine coffee and milk and bring to a boil slowly. Let stand to 10 minutes. Strain, add butter and chocolate to the flavored milk. Cook over boiling water until chocolate melts. Beat eggs, add sugar,

Bread pudding brightens up when it has a mocha flavor. Fluted whipped cream or a meringue topping sprinkled with bits of shaved chocolate make a company dish out of a simple food.

salt and vanilla. Pour into a greased baking dish or individual custard cups and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven for one hour, or until a knife inserted comes out clean. Chill, then serve with plain or whipped cream or peppermint flavored custard sauce.

Swank and the Ball Parks

"Get me a table up front at the ball game!" ... "How's about a reservation for six at the double-header. And will you put on four quarts of champagne! ... Never mind who's pitching; what I wanna know is who's in the floor show!"

These may be routine cracks in American big league ball parks this season. Two private club rooms with bars and 400 boxes to which members only will be permitted will be a feature of the games at Yankee Stadium.

The boxes and club rooms will be open to members paying from $600 to $900 a season, and most of the memberships have already been grabbed by bankers, brokers, business men, theatrical men, etc.

Thus will exclusiveness, social distinctions be introduced to that stronghold of democracy, the American national game of baseball. Down through baseball history the millionaire has rubbed elbows with the street cleaner at the ball parks. "Take your coat off, let your hair down, relax and be one of the gang!" has been the traditional cry.

All men may not have been positive they were equal but at the ball game they felt closer to it than anywhere else.

And now—of all places—the baseball park is to find class consciousness, the upper and lower levels of society, financial distinction and a touch of the night club and country club flavor. One club room will be modernistic with chromium fixtures and red leather chairs; the other will carry the mood of an old English inn of the Heathcliff-on-Finchely-Finchely type. The bar and restaurant will be a deluxer.

Bleacher fans arise!

We demand that the bottle of beer, the pop bottle, the frankfurter and the cause of democracy remain intact at American baseball parks, never to give way to the breast of chicken under glass, the magnum of vintage wine, cafe society, the gossip columns and special privileges for the bourbons!

The beer shortage may be so serious this summer that we will be applying for priority to get a small glass of suds. But we can stand anything up to the point where, in order to get a schooner of beer, we are compelled, through a tie-in sale, to buy a crate of sweet cider.

A rich New York landlord and real estate speculator who worked the old game of charging a war veteran several thousand dollars for a few bits of cheap furniture in order to get a small apartment, got ten days in jail and a fine of $100 the other day. Our idea, if that is the maximum penalty, would be to make the landlord come across with at least $5,000 for the chair in his cell.

A. A. Milne says that years of war have hardened the British so that they "are now immune from the scourge of victory."

It seems more and more apparent that what UNO needs more than anything else are bumpers front and rear and a bullet-proof windshield.

VANISHING AMERICANISMS

"Bock Beer, Five Cents."

"Here's a quarter. Go get a quart of ice cream."

"I don't make a lot of money but I can get all I need and have some fun."

"Let's buy him two new suits for Easter."

HERE AND THERE

They say General Marshall, back from China, took one look at the American scene and exclaimed, "And I thought it hard to understand Chinese!" ... Are-We-Gonna-Get-Inflation Item: the $3.50 filet mignon without vegetables. ... Bakery inquiry, now that the size of the loaf of bread has been cut, "Do you want the small loaf or the invisible one?"

Winston Churchill, getting still another degree, must wish he could repeat his famous line, "This may not be the beginning of the end, but it is the end of the beginning."

Shopper's Lament
The shop windows bulge with the lovefest things;
A feast for the greediest eyes!
It seems to hurt more with rare objects galore

(Take no sugar, no shortening!)

These delicious, new ALL-BRAN muffins made with chopped dates will have a big appeal for the "sweet toothers" in your family! They're so moist. And they're so tender—so good. That's because KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is milled extra-fine for golden softness.

2 cups Kellogg's ALL-BRAN
1/4 cup molasses
1 1/2 cups milk
1 egg

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped dates

Add KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN to molasses and milk and allow to soak for 15 minutes. Beat egg and add to first mixture. Add sifted dry ingredients and fruit. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 20 minutes. Makes 15 light, luscious muffins.

Good Nutrition, too!

ALL-BRAN is made from the VITAL OUTER LAYERS of finest wheat—contains a concentration of the protective food elements found in the whole grain. One-half cup provides over 1/2 your daily minimum need for iron. Serve Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily!

Lynn Says

Vegetable Variety: Now that fresh, spring vegetables are arriving at the markets, you'll want to doll them up in their very best dress.

Cook fresh, tender green asparagus until just barely done and serve with lemon-chive butter, cheese or sour cream sauce. Dust with paprika before serving.

Hot, cooked green or waxed beans may be served with a tablespoonful of chili sauce or combined with one of these other vegetables: carrots, celery, peas, lima beans or onions.

When creaming green beans, add a little nutmeg, parsley, horseradish or mustard to the sauce.

Lima beans are especially savory when served with a few sauteed mushrooms; or, serve with a cream sauce to which a little mustard and lemon juice has been added.

Beets will come back for a return engagement if they are stuffed with the following: cottage cheese seasoned with chili sauce, onion, diced, cooked bacon, salt, pepper and lemon juice. Brown in oven before serving.

ZION'S LUTHERAN CHURCH

Sunday, April 14, 1946, Palm Sunday 9:00 a. m. Sunday School and Bible Class. William H. Santleben, Jr., Supt. 10:00 a. m. English divine service. Holy Communion will be administered during this service.

One day out of each seven was given to this world by its Creator as a day of worship and bodily rest, and so designated in His law. By common consent the Christian church and Christian nations have chosen the first day of each week for this purpose. The misuse of these days of spiritual refreshment and rest can result only in irreparable loss to the individual and nation.

"Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on Eternal life, whereunto thou art called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses." I Timothy 6:12.

You are cordially invited to join Zion's Lutheran in worship unto the Triune God.

The church with a welcome.

A. H. FALKENBERG, Pastor.

HONDO BOYS ENLIST

Among the recent enlistees into the Army Air Forces from Hondo are: Campos E. Martinez, son of Jose A. Martinez; Ernest Nire, son of Mr. and Mrs. Agapito Nira; Daniel Rodriguez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Octaviano Rodriguez; and Felix Rangel, brother of Romona V. Rangel, according to an announcement from Capt. Clem M. Oeth, Area Recruiting Officer Kelly Field, Texas.

All were new enlistees, except Rangel who has served two years with the United States Navy as a S1-cc.

"Enlistment in the Regular Army offers a man a good job, and an interesting one that will provide a good living, steady income and a chance for promotion. A soldier of the Regular Army is furnished clothing, good quarters, medical and dental care, and at the same time is piling up a bond account in retirement benefits worth many dollars each month in addition to his regular pay. Recreation and amusement facilities will be found on all army posts. Thirty day furloughs are given each year, and retirement after 30 years service, with a life income ranging from one-half pay to three quarters pay. An enlistment in the Regular Army offers many opportunities that may not be obtained in civilian life," Capt. Oeth said.

Sharing a party-line telephone!

If you're sharing a telephone party line, you're helping someone else here have telephone service now. Otherwise he'd likely be waiting his turn for service.

Party-line service is one way of stretching the telephone system here—to serve as many people as possible now instead of asking some to wait until we've had time to put in the wires and cables and switching equipment needed to serve everybody who is waiting.

It's a big job—catching up with four years of backed-up demand. But we're hard at it. As soon as possible, we'll bring service to everybody who is waiting for it. And, after that, we expect to be able to furnish one-family telephone service to those who want it.

"GOOD NEIGHBOR" SUGGESTIONS for party-liners

Before calling, please listen to see whether the line is in use. If it is, hang up gently and try your call again a little later.

When talking, remember your party-line neighbor—he may want to make a call—so please be reasonably brief.

Between calls, try to allow a little time so the other people on the line may have the opportunity to use it.

Ask the children to follow these good neighbor suggestions, too.

Thanks a lot.
